NOKIA ONE, MOBILE CONNECTIVITY SERVICE is an effective means of connecting your employees to desktop corporate information such as e-mail, calendars and employee directories, while they are in and out of the office.

Nokia One is convenient, flexible, and easy-to-use with nearly anytime and anywhere access;

- Global geographical coverage
- Several messaging methods available (SMS, WAP, Voice and web)
- Compatible with a high degree of security
- Simple to install and deploy

Most importantly, Nokia One works with what your employees have today – a mobile phone and existing desktop applications.

Find contact information with Nokia One Mobile Connectivity Service

Send Find with the name of the person whose contact information you wish to find to the Nokia One number.

You will shortly receive a message containing the contact information for the person you named. If your phone supports business cards, Nokia One will send the contact information as a business card that you can directly save into your the phone book of your mobile phone. Otherwise you receive the information as a normal text message.

What is included will depend on the information stored in the directory. As an example, the message could show the full name, title and unit, phone, mobile and fax numbers, as well as the e-mail address of the person.

You need not know or enter the full name of the person; Nokia One will search the directory for the names you enter and look for all matching names.

If there are multiple matches to the name you sent, you will get a list with all the choices. The list will show the names, and some other information, based on which they can be separated.

Sending a number from the list will return the contact information for that person.

It is also possible to use the Nokia One address book to find to whom a number belongs. Send text message find followed by the unknown number to Nokia One. You will then receive a similar kind of response as in searching for a name.
